Seven events. One research program. All of you! The All of Us Research Program opened nationwide on May 6, 2018. Thanks to the more than 100,000 people who joined our launch day events in person or online.

Watch Launch Day Highlights on Launch.JoinAllofUs.org

Eric Dishman, director of All of Us, discusses the importance of the program, what makes it different, and how it can help speed up health research breakthroughs.

Watch the Video on JoinAllofUs.org/directors-corner

The All of Us Journey is traveling across the country. If we’re in your neighborhood, come say hello, hear the latest about the program, and learn more about how you can help change the future of health.

View Upcoming Stops at JoinAllofUs.org/journey

We’re excited to welcome 15 new community groups and health care provider associations to the All of Us Research Program. These groups will help expand our efforts and continue to build the community connections that are essential to our mission.

Learn More About Our Partners at JoinAllofUs.org/program-partners

All of Us seeks participant input on every aspect of the program to make it better as we go. Twenty-two new program participants have been selected to join All of Us working groups and committees to help support the design and implementation of the program.

More on Who’s Involved at allofus.nih.gov/news-events-and-media

"We look to our participant partners to help ensure our efforts reflect the diverse needs of our participants, including communities often underrepresented in research."

—Dara Richardson-Heron, M.D., Chief Engagement Officer, All of Us Research Program

Join the Conversation by Following @AllofUsResearch and Using #JoinAllofUs.